November 2024

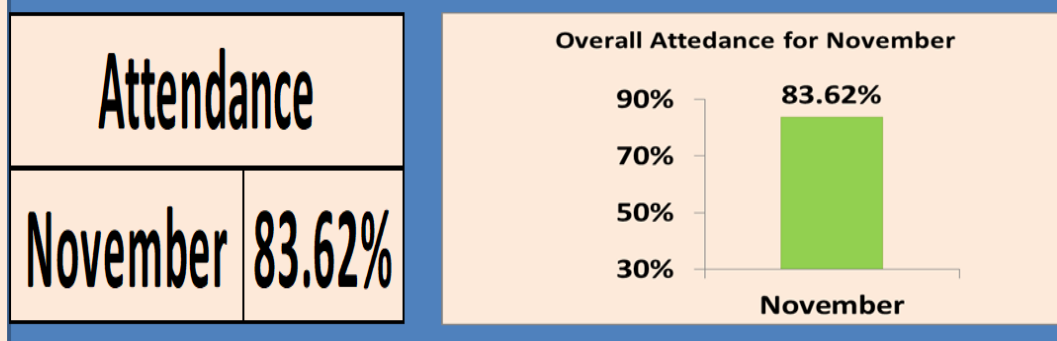

As we bid farewell to November, I would like to reflect on the month that has passed and share our achievements, challenges, and plans moving forward.

November has been a month full of learning, growth, and progress. Our students have displayed great enthusiasm and dedication towards their academic pursuits, with numerous activities and assessments that have brought out their best. We are also proud of the extracurricular activities that have flourished, showcasing the diverse talents within our school community.

This month, we also focused on fostering a culture of kindness and empathy, with several initiatives aimed at promoting mental well-being and helping one another. It has been heartening to witness our students engage in various community outreach programs and environmental sustainability efforts, reflecting the values we uphold as a school.

Why do waver, mortal being? The creator Lord Himself shall protect you.

He who created you will also provide nourishment and support.
